

JOHN Y. SMITH MANSION

Built--1903 (brick)

Address--518 North First East

Present owners--Larry/Lisa Michaels

John Y. Smith, married to Emerett Cutler, was an ambitious man. Director of the Lehi Silver Band, cashier of the Lehi Commercial and Savings Bank, and an eventual Utah State senator. Smith erected this fine home in the block south of his father-in-law, Thomas R. Cutler. In March of 1914, the home was leased by Dr. Frederick Worlton, who established a residence on the ground floor, and Lehi's first hospital on the second floor. Six months later, Worlton moved the hospital to the Cutler mansion, and the Smith home became a residence, which it remains today. The Glade Dalton family restored the home when they purchased it in 1964. Portions of the 1984 movie, Footloose were filmed there. Larry and Lisa Michaels, present owners have spent several years renovating this mansion.
